CHARLEROI MINERS REPUDIATE ACTION OF "RUMP" CONVENTION AT PITTSBURG

Refuse to Recognize Action Taken Last Week Deposing President Francis Feehan

WILL NOT PAY EXPENSES

Persons Who Called Meeting To Name Delegates Suspended---Feehan Pays No Attention to Expulsion

Repudiating the action of a number of anti-Feehanities of this immediate vicinity in sending delegates to the "rump" convention held last week in Pittsburg, which deposed President Francis Feehan and other district officers of the United Mine Workers, Charleroi Local No.593 last night by resolution refused to recognize the Pittsburg meeting or pay the expense of the delegates, and through a vote suspended from the organization those who had sent them. The meeting which was held in P. H. C. hall was largely attended, the place being packed to the doors. EvenNational organizers were present.

Previous to the convention at Pittsburg a meeting of a few members antagonistic to the present administration held a meeting and elected two men as delegates. Such action it is stated was pursued by other locals with the result that President Feehan and other officers were expelled. By majority vote last night at the meeting here all this was declared to be illegal, and the local decided by resolution that it would not sanction the Pittsburg meeting or recognize any business that was transacted there.

President Francis Feehan is paying no attention whatever to the action at the "rump" convention deposing him and other officers—but is going ahead preparing for the district convention to be held March 27. This meeting was postponed from February. He is being supported generally by miners over the district, and last week Monongahela local No. 235 took action similar to that taken last night by the Charleroi local and expelled members who called the meeting to appoint delegates to the "rump" convention.

Local Option Bill Defeated

Legislature Votes Against Placing it on the Calander

By a vote of 76 to 121 the House at Harrisburg yesterday refused to adopt the resolution to place the Boyd local option bill on the calendar, notwithstanding the negative recommendations of the law and order committee. This effectually kill the local option bill for the third successive Legislative session, and places on record the forces for and against it.

Some warm speeches were made both for and against the resolution before the question was put to vote. One of the arguments used against local option was by Representative Klumpp of Allegheny, who said that the license system was needed for revenue purposes. Representative Boyd of Westmoreland county, author of the bill, defended the measure and was ably assisted by others. Representatives Holland and Feeney voted in favor of putting the resolution on the calendar, but Representative Bentley voted against it.

WILL ASK ADVICE OF DR. DIXON

North Charleroi Wants Board of Health to Work

JOINT MEETING CALLED

North Charleroi council in its regular session last night instructed Borough Clerk James Haggerty to notify State Heath Commissioner Samuel G. Dixon that council was unable to secure a much needed meeting of the board of health and to ask advice from him. There are a number of matters that need attention and complaints have been filed. Secretary Kelly has been attending to them himself, but other members of the board are alleged to not help him out. Arrangements were made to meet jointly with Charleroi council on next Tuesday evening, March 14, to discuss sewage disposal matters.

In the absence of the president Councilman Samuel Gaskill was appointed to the chair. Other members present were: Sloan, Rockwell and Nebulung.

The treasurer's report showing a balance of $397.22 was accepted. Bills to the amount of $343.45 were ordered paid.

A committee composed of Councilmen Rockwell, Sloan and Neubling was appointed to purchase a hose cart.

The borough solicitor was instructed to draw up an ordinance to regulate the opening of any improved street in the borough for repairing of pipe lines.

The fire department presented the name of Jasper Rockwell as their selection for chief, and council was unanimous in approval.

Borough books will be in shape to be audited in a few days and Auditors Bane, Metz and Williams were notified to make the audit.

The borough solicitor was instructed to proceed in the collection of all liens in favor of the borough. The street committee will secure plans and submit them to council at the next meeting, relative to such sidewalks along Lincoln avenue as should be laid.

GREENE COUNTY TO GET NEW RAILROAD?

Pennsylvania Has Surveyors Laying Out New Route Leading From the River to Waynesburg

WEST PENN MAY BUILD LINE THROUGH TO VALLEY

From present propects there are likely to be some interesting railroad movements in Greene county this year, says the Waynesburg Republican. In addition to the building of a branch of the Pennsylvania lines from Millsboro at Hackney's Station, via Clarksville, Zollarsville and Marianna, which is now assured, the Pennsylvania Railroad company has had a corps of engineers at work the past week, making surveys up South Ten Mile creek from Clarksville toward Jefferson and Waynesburg. Information has leaked out that in additon to making the survey they are taking levels and locating the board. The recent large purchases of surface by coal companies, near Jefferson, indicated that there will be coal operations there in the near future. The surveying corps for the railroad has reached a point near to Jefferson and it is understood it is their intention to continue on to Waynesburg.

The Pennsylvania company has also within the past few weeks made a survey for an extension of their newly projected line from Hackney's station up Ten Mile creek to Conger's and thence on to Prosperity. This is likely to form a part of a new road from Hackney's to Wheeling.

Reliable information has been received that the West Penn Electric Railways company expects to build a road to Waynesburg soon. This company owns 150 miles of electric road in Fayette, Westmoreland and Allegheny counties and will eventually either get control of lines in this part of the Monongahela valley, or build new lines here.

TELEPHONE ORDINANCE TO UNDERGO REVISION

Council Takes Up Bell Telephone Matter and Places it in Hands of Ordinance Committee

OFFICERS' SALARIES ARE INCREASED

Granting permission to the C. D. and P. Telegraph company to place conduits under ground, an ordinance presented by the company passed first reading at the regular meeting of council last night, and was referred to the ordinance committee for revision. The ordinance will be taken up at some future meeting for final consideration, after whatever changes deemed necessary by the ordinance committee have been made.

President J. K. Hein was in the chair and councilmen present were C. O. Frye, W. R. Gaut, Oscar C. Linn and W. H. Calvert. Councilmen Charles Schmeiler and A. O. Davis were absent.

Reports were heard and a number of bills ordered paid. Burgess George W. Risbeck reported a total of 59 arrests during the month, fines aggregating $95.75, $80.75 of which was paid, the balance being served in time. Tax-Collector J. W. Mathias reported for 1909 taxes he had placed in the treasurer's hand the sum of $160.71 and for 1910 taxes, $1,171.30. B. L. Parsons reported tax collections for 1906, 1907 and 1908 aggregating $51.23. Treasurer E. W. Hastings' report for the month ending February 15 is summarized as follows:

Balance from last report	$1,241.10
Receipts	1,567.54
Total	$2,808.64
Disbursements	2,633.07
Balance in treasury	$175.57

Upon recommendation of the police committee the salaries of all the police officers were increased $5.00. The street commissioner's salary was increased a like amount.

Action was taken to the effect that Tax Collector J. W. Mathias be given a month in which to secure money for taxes from those refused exoneration.

Adjournment was taken to meet next Tuesday night jointly with the North Charleroi council for the discussion of the sewage disposal matter.

The accident in which Lizzie Pfile was injured, occurred at the North Charleroi end of the Charleroi Monessen bridge on February 9, 1909. The plaintiffs aver the car was started with a jerk before Lizzie Pfile was free of the step. As a result, it is averred, she was thrown to the street and badly injured. Railroad Promises to Stop Train at Finleyville

ON THREE MONTHS TRIAL

Beginning Monday of this week the ticket agent of the B. and O. railroad has received notice that train No. 706 due from the west at 11:04, will stop at Finleyville for a period of three months. This is the result of complaints from Charleroi and valley people to the State Railroad commission. If there is sufficient traffic at the end of three months the service will be.

Facts Brought Out in Connection With Recent Republican Campaign

Auditor H. B. Hughes, who is investigating the expenditures of the Republican county committee at the last election, held another session yesterday at Washington. About all that was disclosed was that F. J. Scouvart, precinct chairman of Avella, had been given $20 for getting the vote out in his precinct. He testified that he paid two watchers $5 each and kept $10 for his own services. The session adjourned for another hearing Saturday.

Attempt to Force Party To Accept His Dictation Meets With Entire Faiiure

AFTER HIS GUARANTEE

Want Him to Stick With Them Through Thick and Thin---Manipulation of Other Tickets Alleged

According to the Washington Record, former Congressman E. F. Acheson is laying plans to try to capture the county offices at the coming election. Concerning his efforts the Record says:

"E. F. Acheson is trying to force the Keystone party to accept his dictation of all nominations for county offices. The Keystone leaders refused to subscribe to his program and there is some ground for a belief that the ex-boss now has no more influence outside of the Republican party than he has in it.

"Many of the Keystone leaders wish to be free to indorse Republican candidates for office if an indorsement appears to be the proper thing. The ex-boss has let it be understood that he will not support any candidate at all unless he is on the Keystone ticket, and that he cannot go on the ticket without the consent of the Honorable E. F. He is also attempting to manipulate the nominations on all tickets and the discovery of his game by Keystone men and Republicans at about the same time has stirred up a condition which promise to force him to play a lone hand.

"For the purpose of intimidating candidates it has been rumored that the newspapers controlled by the ex-boss have prepared and are ready to publish a great mass of material attacking their records. This system of attack is not new and it has ceased to be effective.

"Unless he is willing to guarantee the Keystone party men he will stick with them through primaries and the regular election as a foe of the Republican party he has been told not to expect to have a say in nominating the least of the party's candidates. That he will now attempt to manipulate the Democratic primaries is regarded as certain. A number of Democratic candidates, however, have aroused a good deal of Democratic enthusiasm and they are prepared to re-organize their party on a basis which will put Democrats only into party offices."

Everybody Boost

The Charleroi merchants are preparing for a "Booster Week." Their idea is to promote trade, to bring to the town again those patrons who may have wandered away, and to also attract new ones. It is simply a trade promoting idea, in which united effort is substituted for the effort of the individual, and in which the energy of the one is multiplied by the energy of all.

It is the general belief in business circles that much trade that formerly came to Charleroi has been lost to the town. For this various causes are assigned, among which is the competition of nearby towns and of Pittsburg as well as the big mail order houses of the large cities. These latter houses, as well as the Pittsburg firms, have been more persistent advertisers than the local merchants, and it is but natural that their efforts should bring results. The aggregate of these losses in trade amount to a big item in the course of a year, and it is time that the local people began to take notice. It is to counteract this outside influence that the Booster Week is being promoted, and it will be a success if everybody will only boost.

Not Yet

For the third time in succession a local option bill has been killed in the State Legislature. While the supporters of the bill this session were not so sanguine as formerly, and the ultimate result was foreshadowed, the showing made clearly indicates that the issue will not down, and that the question in some form will sooner or later be given a trial at least. The time is not yet ripe for the inauguration of popular regulation of the liquor traffic.

While the principle of local option is quite generally approved by the people, there are many reasons for the lack of a united demand for its adoption. Chief of these perhaps is the operation of the Brooks law which, despite the opposition of the temperance forces, is a most efficient measure in regulating and restricting the liquor traffic. When the provisions of the Brooks law are rigidly enforced they are really more prohibitive than a popular expression on the subject. The court will not, as a rule, tolerate what will be overlooked and condoned by the public. Compared with other States the Brooks law of Pennsylvania makes the traffic less odious than the less restrictive laws of other States, and for that reason public sentiment has never been aroused to the same degree here as elsewhere.

Another reason, perhaps, why the drink habit so generally prevails in the industrial sections of the State is the unpleasant and unattractive homes and communities in which large numbers of the workers are obliged to live. This is a most potent factor in promoting the drinking habit, and until these conditions are removed there is not much hope for improvement in popular sentiment against the abuses of the liquor traffic. Economic conditions among the workers are worse in Pennsylvania than in any other State, and that alone is a big obstacle to overcome in favor of local option. The sentiment for this plan of regulation is no doubt growing, but the public is not yet responsive to the demands for its adoption.

ELECTRIC SPARKS

The trouble with a Chinese newspaper is that you can't tell when you have the thing upside down.

Strong drink and banana peelings have caused the down-fall of many a good man.

Roosevelt used to have a corner on surprises, but his glory in that line has now passed into the hands of President Taft.

John D. Rockefeller's pastor has thrown up the job because they won't build a larger church. It's up to John.

It seems that the noted musical directors are out of jobs more often than the men who play pianos for nickelodeons.

Always remember to never do wring while people are looking.

They hadn't any more than discovered Dorothy Arnold, supposedly in New York city and later in Italy, until she immediately got lost again.

Whenever you see a man who doesn't wear his feelings ready to be penetrated on the outside of his overcoat you can either put it down that he is an idiot or a really broad thinking man. Most likely the former.

When legal lights get to praising the moon they are entirely out of order. It takes astronomers to do that, and no successful lawyer has any business being a real nice honest gent like most of that class.

When a pianist is able to draw three hundred dollar for three hours work he has something more than a delicate touch.

Some Mark Twains Maxims

The very ink with which all history is written is merely fluid prejudice.

There isn't a parallel of latitude but thinks it would have been the equator if it had had its rights.

All say, "How hard it is that we have to die." A strange complaint to come from the mouths of people who have had to live.

When angry, count four; when very angry, swear.

Prosperity is the best protector of principle.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

Men have so few beauty doctors that they should be especially grateful for the instructions given by Homer Croy on the manipulation of their hair. Leaving out of account those males who have got to the stage of using a huckaback towel for parting their scanty locks, Mr. Croy considers the need of others with painstaking thoughtfulness:

"Men with low, squatting foreheads should not pull their hair down over their brows, and men whose foreheads are beginning to work back should invite their locks down. If your hair has quietly slipped down toward your ears on each side, leave it there. If you bring it up in strings and wisps it will merely look like climbing vines, and will never really have the free-and-easy, homelike appearance that ought to be the part of all natural hair.

"Do not part your hair any earlier than you can help. Hair is in a hurry these days, anyway. Usually it doesn't stay more than long enough too make sure that the baby is going to be a boy before it hastens off. It will part of itself soon enough, the best you can do.

"Before combing your hair you should get acquainted with the architecture of your face. If your face is of the harvest moon variety, do not inlay your hair. Puff it up as much as possible. It's better to look like a feather duster on a Monday morning than a scratched billiard ball on a Saturday night.

"But if your face is a long, galloping ensemble, do not encourage your hair to fluff. If your head inclines to run up to a cone, do not spread your hair around in imitation of a palm street hatch; rather fluff it up and winrow it for fear some unbred person will begin to talk about spring radish tops."

"There's more in typewriting than a person would think," declared a well known business man recently. "There's a big lesson in the operating of one of these labor saving machines. For instance take the career of Rose L. Fritz, who has held for sometime the speed record of the world.

"Miss Fritz can write out words faster than most campaign spellbinders and speak them, which is going some.

"Every stenographer, at some time or another, has tried to see how fast the typewriter carriage would go. In these cases the results would show up something like this:

"NOW is the time for all 1 good men to come to the axd of the party) or words to that effect.

"In Philadelphia not long ago Miss Fritz wrote 6,135 words in an hour from new copy.

"She wrote from unfamiliar printed matter 123 words in one minute.

"Then she took in shorthand 187 words in a minute and followed this by transcribing her notes 112 words in a minute.

"Here's the lesson for all girls in what Miss Fritz has done:

"Six years ago at 16, she began to study typewriting. In three weeks she was doing perfect work at the rate of 120 words a minute. Hard work and nothing else did it."

Good Way to Use Hyomei and Quickly Get Cured

Besides breathing Hyomei through the inhaler a few times a day try this for quick relief and cure, especially for stubborn cases.

Into a bowl three quarters full of boiling water pour a teaspoonful of Hyomei. Cover head and bowl with a towel and breathe the pleasant, healing, antiseptic vapor that arises.

It's wonderful how quickly this method clears the stuffed up head and relives the distress caused by catarrh. Steel Pen Helps Forgers.

The crime of forgery has been facilitated and increased by the modern introduction of metallic pens, gold and steel, says a writer in the Indianapolis News. The old fashioned quill pen was smooth and pleasant to write with, though it sometimes balked and sputtered, but it did not lend itself to skillful imitations as easily as the metallic pen does. The crime of forgery doubtless has been promoted by the almost universal education of modern times. In an age when everybody writes and when many are skillful penmen forgeries are much more frequent than they were centuries ago, when the person who could handle a pen was an exception. Many modern criminals make a living by committing forgeries, victimizing hotels, banks, capitalists and business men generally.

Domestic Economy.

"Hey, mon," exclaimed the braw, bonnie north countryman, "thrift is a wunnerful thing!"

"Yes," replied his English traveling companion. "You're right there. Now, I gave my wife a ten pound note to manage on last time I was away, and—would you believe it?—instead of exceeding it she saved nearly a sovereign out of it to buy herself a hat!"

"That's nowt," replied the Scotsman. "My wife gives the kids ha'pennies apiece to go to bed supperless; when they're asleep she takes the ha'pennies off on 'em ageean, and then she makes 'em do wi'out ony breakfasts for losin' 'em! Hey, mon, that's thrift!"—London Scraps.

TOWER HILL.

A Noted London Spot, the Scene of Many Famous Occurrences.

Tower Hill is perhaps both the most important eminence and the most notable spot in all London. Few of us think what great persons have quietly lived there and what others, equally great, have wept and died upon it.

To it, or rather to Great Tower street, came Rochester to pursue his trade as an Italian fortune teller, while the bedizened Buckingham often walked thither to consult a conjurer, a shrewd, farseeing rogue, who, when Felton bought at the cutler's shop on the summit of the hill for a shilling the knife with which he killed the duke's father, may have known for what purpose it was required.

William Penn was born on this hill in a house close to London wall. Forty-four years later—that is, in A. D. 1685—a poet lay dead, choked by a crust which starvation had urged him to devour too greedily, in an upper room of the Bull tavern. This was the ill fated Otway. At the time when the son of the muses lay dead Betterton, the celebrated founder of the stage after the restoration, was wringing tears from the eyes of the public, not for the famished dead, but at his own fictitious sorrows in "Venice Preserved."

It was in Great Tower street that Peter the Great used to pass his evenings drinking hot pepper and brandy with his boon companion, Lord Carmarthen.—London Standard.

Consistency.

Mother—Aren't you goin' to wash up them tea things, Mariaranne, before you go out? Daughter—No, I ain't. I'm late enough for "mother's 'elp" class as it is.—London Opinion.

Modernity.

"Some are so intensely modern that they prefer a Corot to a Rembrandt."

"If it's a better hill climber I don't blame 'em. Me for the French car every time."—London Punch.

His Sarcastic Friend.

He was very proud of his new automobile—talked automobile, dreamed automobile, read automobile. Finally to his friends he became a nuisance, and each to himself swore softly that he would bide his time and at the proper moment give him a little verbal thrust.

Finally one long suffering individual was asked to go for a ride. Excuses were of no avail. He was bundled into the machine and taken for a spin through the parks and over the boulevards. In due course of time, without any serious mishap, they pulled up at the Automobile club. The auto crank and his guest were soon surrounded by several of their friends.

"How did you enjoy your ride?" was asked of the auto crank's friend.

"Until today I never thought an automobile could go so fast," was his reply. (Here the auto crank was all attention. That was some praise for his car. Right out in public too. That would silence some of the scoffers who

History in Toys.

The history of the world is crystallized in the children's toys. Each great war leaves soldiers in the nursery cupboard dressed correctly to a strap and button. This has always been so. As each successive age in the world's history has gone by the weapons of that age have passed to the hands of the boys as toys. There are in our great museums miniature crossbows, spears and shields. Toy armor as finely inlaid and engraved as any real accouterments is occasionally to be seen, and old prints show the boys playing with such figures. Even the children of the French revolution had their toy guillotines.—Collier's.

Wanted It to Show.

A rich old farmer once had his portrait painted. When the portrait was finished the old farmer looked at it, shook his head and said to the artist: "Very good. Very good, indeed. But there is one fault that you must remedy. Please make the right side of the chest bulge out. That is where I carry my wallet."

Playing at Death.

The mother of Ivan Turgenev, the Russian novelist, was a trying person to live with, irritable, capricious and unreasonable. On Ivan's birthday in 1845, we are told in "Two Russian Reformers," after a day of festivities, Mme. Turgenev pretended to be dying. "She sent for her confessor and, placing before her the portrait of her son Ivan, exclaimed 'Adieu, Ivan! Adieu, Nicolas! Adieu, my children!' Then she ordered her forty servants and all the men employed about the house to say goodby to her. When they had filed out of the room Mme. Turgenev declared that she felt better and asked for tea. The next day the following 'order' appeared:

"'I give orders that tomorrow morning the disobedient servants, Nicolas Jacovlef, Ivan Petrof and Egor Kondratatlef, shall sweep the court in front of my windows.'

"Those names were those of servants who had not appeared at her bedside, possibly because they were a little drunk that evening. 'Good for nothings! Drunkards!' exclaimed Mme. Turgenev. 'They rejoice at the death of their mistress!'"

The Bank Beat the Prince.

The Gentlewoman of London recalls the following story of the prince regent and Coutts' bank: "When George IV. was a regent he had a grudge against Coutts and determined to play a trick on the authorities. In those days even the great banks kept very small reserves of cash, and the playful prince thought out a plan to close Coutts'. So he sent his equerry round from Carlton House with a check for £100,000, fondly hoping that the bank would not be able to pay over the counter. The prince's trick, however, failed of success, as the wary old partner of the Strand bank proved equal to the occasion. He said at once to the equerry, 'How will his royal highness take the amount, in gold or notes?' The equerry hesitated and then said he had better go back to Carlton House to inquire. So he departed, and Coutts' had time to send to the Bank of England and get the cash required, but it was not needed, as the prince regent, seeing that Coutts' had got the best of him, did not return the check in question."

Eggs That Can't Be Found.

The eggs of some common birds of the present day have never been found. There is the robin snipe; its eggs have never been seen. An English zoologist kept a man going up and down the coast of Labrador for weeks purposely to get a robin snipe's egg, but it was in vain. The bird is known by thousands of people, but it breeds so far north and so remote from any civilization that no scientific observer can ever get to its nest ere the young are hatched and have taken to wing. The frigate bird that is so commonly seen at sea on the Pacific and off the West Indies is such a solitary bird and is so seldom seen in its nest during the hours of daylight that its egg is rare. It seems strange, but the eggs of so well known a bird as the sandpiper have never been found and are almost priceless.—London Globe.

Reversed the Proposition

Robert Wickliffe Woolley, the writer found it necessary not long ago to take a trip west. On the dining car of the train he saw that he had in his pocket 10 cents in change, his smallest bank note being one for $50. He handed this to the porter, who went to the end of the car for a conference with the conductor.

"I'm very sorry about this," said the conductor, standing in front of Woolley and toying with the big bill, "but we haven't the change for $50. We'll just take your address and send you the change."

Woolley calmly reached over and took possession of the banknote. "You've got nothing on me," he said. "I'll take the address of the railroad and send the price of the meal."—Chicago Record-Herald.

The Baths of Caracalla.

The Romans appear to have been well off in the matter of bathing places in the first and second centuries. In the baths of Caracalla 1,600 bathers could be accommodated at one time. The inclosed area was 360 square yards, but it included a course for foot racing. The bathing establishment was 240 yards in length by 124 wide. The remains of the walls are eight and ten feet thick and in some places as much as fifty feet high.

A Cumulative Test.

As the thin man and the stout one were talking of diet and food in general the thin man said: "You can get an excellent dinner at Clapham's, the restaurant near my office, for 25 cents. Ever try one of his dinners?"

"One of 'em! Yes, I should say I had," said the stout man. "Why, I ate four of 'em one day last week!"

The Best Thing.

"What do you mean by kissing me, Herr Frisch?"

"My aunt told me to. She told me to come and help myself to the best thing I could find in the kitchen."—Fliegende Blatter.

Just Men.

If any one says that he has seen a just man in want of bread I answer that it was in some place where there was no other just man.—St. Clement.

RIDING THE BUZZARD.

The Ricebird Uses His Bulky Enemy as an Aeroplane.

People generally associate size and brute strength with victory, especially among the lower animals. Many times, however, this is far from being the case, especially in the bird kingdom. Among the rice flats of the Carolinas there abound at some seasons of the year tiny ricebirds, birds so small that it takes two dozen for a good meal, though bones and all are eaten.

The great buzzard is found circling over the flats at all seasons. He dreads the time for the ricebird to come, for he is then nearly pestered to death. It is a common sight to see one of these little birds fly up to a buzzard and, after dodging this way and that round the awkward bulk, finally alight well forward between the buzzard's wings on the back. Here the tiny passenger grabs a few feathers in his beak and holds on for grim life. After enjoying a ride for as long as he desires the little fellow hops off and is gone before Mr. Buzzard is well aware of it.

The peculiar part of the whole thing is that apparently the only purpose the ricebird has in getting on the back of the buzzard is to take a free ride. It puzzles every one who chances to see the little drama to find any other reason, yet the fact remains that it is a frequent occurrence, and the little birds seem to enjoy it immensely.—New York Tribune.

INDIAN DEATH CUSTOMS.

Graves of the Hopi and the Hogans of the Navajos.

The Hopi Indian believes that the souls of all deceased adults go to the Grand canyon. When a man dies a grave is dug. The nearest relative of the deceased carries the body to the grave, places it in a sitting posture facing the Grand canyon, erects a long pole between the legs, locks the dead man's fingers around it and fills the grave To the top of the pole, protruding above the ground, he ties one end of a string and leads the other end in the direction of the Grand canyon. At the end of four days it is believed the soul leaves the body, climbs the pole and with the string to guide it goes to its eternal home in the canyon.

The Navajos, on the contrary, are very superstitious about handling dead bodies. They believe that the evil spirit that kills the person hovers around the hogan, as they call their lodge, awaiting other victims, and a hogan in which a death occurs is never occupied again. Navajo hogans are always built with the entrance facing the east. When a death occurs in one of them an opening is invariably made in the north side. Therefore when one sees a hogan with the north side knocked out he may be certain some one has died in it.—Dillon Wallace in Outing.

Antiquity of the Dog.

It is impossible to say when dogs were first domesticated, but some of the earliest traces are found on Egyptian monuments, with figures of dogs, somewhat of the greyhound type, which date back to at least 3500 B. C. Even in those remote days the dog was highly esteemed. Coming down a little later, we read that Ulysses 3,000 years ago was recognized by his dog Argus after his swineherd had failed to do so.

Plutarch speaks of Alcibades, who cut off the tail of his dog, and Myron, the sculptor, immortalized the animal by chiseling his image in marble. The Romans valued their dogs and kept them from the chase and also as pets. Alexander the Great owned a veteran fit to tackle a lion.

A Bibulous Goose.

Geese will live to a great age, and some few years ago I came across a very venerable goose (male or female I cannot now say) in Westmoreland in unexpected circumstances. I was walking from Milnthorpe to Arnside and at Ganaside found an acquaintance sitting on a seashore bench feeding a pet goose with biscuits steeped in ale. He told me that this goose had been in his family for over forty years and was partial to beer, stout and even gin.

Rev James Hall, M. A., told of a goose in Stirlingshire, Scotland, that had been killed by accident after living at the same place for "above eighty years."—London Field.

Skating on a Tennis Court.

When one is building a tennis court provision may easily be made for a rink by excavating from six inches to one foot deeper than the surrounding ground and making this depressed area as much greater than his court as his purse or surroundings will permit. Twenty-five feet in the clear outside the lines of the court will give an area of over 11,000 square feet—an ample space for a number of people to occupy without crowding. The court may be flooded by means of a hose attached to the house faucet, first saturating the ground and then when it has frozen flooding the court.—Suburban Life.

Deafness of Blue Eyed White Cats.

All white cats are not deaf, but most blue eyed white cats are. It has never been discovered why the blue eyed cats should have the tendency to deafness, but it is a fact, while there has never been a case known of a yellow eyed or green eyed white cat being deaf unless by accident.—St. Nicholas.

Duty.

Duty stands for the most part close at hand, unobscured, simple, immediate. If any man has the will to hear her voice, to him is she willing to enter and be his ready guest.—Francis Peabody.

ATHLETIC DEVOTIONS.

Gymnastic Exercises That Impressed the Kurdish Villagers.

Everything is liable to be misunderstood, even gymnastic exercises. This truth was brought home to George H. Hepworth, and he tells his experience in "Through Armenia on Horseback." The author was stopping in a Kurdish village, and the inn possessed but one general living room.

In the morning I began my regular gymnastics, stooping until my fingers touched the floor, throwing my arms about like the spokes of a wheel, striking out from the shoulder and going through all the exercises, none of which I ever omitted. I would gladly have taken a sponge bath, but it would have been impossible to get enough water. A pint is enough to suffice a Turk.

Well, I got under way with my exercises when I saw that my audience was excited; conversation dropped into a whisper, then ceased; word passed from one to another, and one by one the occupants of the room quietly left. I feared that they were offended and wanted to call them back and apologize. Just then my dragoman entered, laughing.

"What has happened?" I asked.

He laughed the harder as he replied: "The Kurds think you are practicing devotional religious exercises, and they retired under the impression that you would regard their presence as an intrusion."

Invisible Indians.

All Indians seem to have learned a wonderful way of walking unseen, making themselves invisible like certain spiders, which, in case of alarm, caused, for example, by a bird alighting on the bush their webs are spread upon, immediately bounce themselves up and down on their elastic threads so rapidly that only a blur is visible. The wild Indian power of escaping observation, even where there is little or no cover to hide in, was probably slowly acquired in hard hunting and fighting lessons while trying to approach game, take enemies by surprise or get safely away when compelled to retreat. And this experience transmitted through many generations seems at length to have become what is vaguely called instinct.—John Muir in Atlantic.

How To Stop —A— Stubborn Cough

We don't mean just stop the irritation in your throat—but cure the underlying cause.

Cough syrups cannot do this. It takes a constitutional tonic body builder to do the work properly—and cure you to stay cured. Vinol is the remedy you need.

Mrs. Minnie Osgood, of Glens Falls, N. Y., writes:—"After trying several remedies for a bad cough and cold without benefit, I was asked to try Vinol. It worked like magic. It cured my cold and cough and I gained in health and strength. I consider Vinol the most wonderful tonic and invigorator I ever saw."

If we cannot stop that cough with VINOL—our delicious cod liver and iron tonic—which is made without oil—we will not charge you a cent for the medicine you buy. This seems like a pretty fair proposition—and ought to be accepted. Don't you think so? With this understanding we ask you to try a bottle of VINOL.

An illustrated booklet describing this great work, and telling what it means to the New York passenger has been issued by the Pennsylvania Railroad and will be sent postpaid to any address by George W. Splendid for the Blood

"Being all run down last spring I was advised to take Pinkham's Blood Purifier. I tried one bottle, and got such quick relief that by the time I had taken three bottles I felt like a new person. After taking the medicine I gained twenty pounds in three months" —Aaron Winslow, 60 Washington Street, Lynn, Mass.

At this season of the year almost every one needs a reliable blood purifier or spring medicine. This is indicated by that tired, "dragged-out" feeling—humors and eruptions which appear on the face and body,—and unless the blood is purified and enriched more serious consequences are liable to follow.

Pinkham's Blood Purifier

The best spring and blood medicine, is prepared by the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company, of Lynn, Mass. You know this Company. You know that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the standard medicine for women; your common-sense tells that the company which owns so successful and valuable a medicine as that could never afford to risk its reputation by putting on the market any other medicine not of the same high degree of excellence. When you buy medicine prepared by this company you get the best, and Pinkham's Blood Purifier is The Best

DO YOU know of anyone who is old enough to read, who has not seen that sign at a railroad crossing?

If everyone has seen it at some time or other, then why doesn't the railroad let the sign rot away? Why does the railroad company continue to keep those signs at every crossing?

Maybe you think, Mr. Merchant, "Most everybody knows my store, I don't have to advertise."

Your store and your goods need more advertising than the railroads need do to warn people to "Look Out for the Cars."

Brownsville Hotell License is Revoked

Judge Robert E. Umble yesterday at Uniontown ordered the bar of the Pennsylvania Hotel at South Brownsville closed indefinitely. The order suspending the license resulted from testimony at a hearing before Judge Umbel, where Washington county residents complained of the treatment they they received at the hotel one Sunday last summer. T. J. Underwood and J. R. Myers, both of California, and Joseph Underwood and Alfred Latchen, both of Roscoe, stated that when they complained to the proprietor declared he thought the court was not running the hotel.

An Elusive Water Lily.

The water lily of the Amazon has very elusive habits. The buds open twice, the first time just a chink at the tip in the early sunrise hours, a sort of premonitory symptom. On the following evening it spreads its four sepals with such alacrity that you can see them move. But the big white bud among them remains unchanged until 4 o'clock in the morning, when it hurriedly spreads its blossom wide open, remaining in this condition only half an hour. Within the hour it has nearly closed, and by another hour and a half the entire flower has been drawn under water by the coiling of the stalk

Diamonds.

Diamonds were first brought to Europe from the east, where the mine of Sumbulpoor was the first known Golconda, now in ruins, was once a celebrated diamond mart. The mines of Brazil were discovered in 1728 and for a long time furnished most of the diamonds of commerce. In 1867 diamonds were discovered in Cape Colony, and in 1870 the wonderful finds in the Transvaal were made which resulted in the immense fortunes of the late Cecil Rhodes and others. Most of the diamonds of the world are now furnished by the South African fields —New York American.

CHARLEROI MINERS REPUDIATE ACTION OF "RUMP" CONVENTION AT PITTSBURG

Refuse to Recognize Action Taken Last Week Deposing President Francis Feehan

WILL NOT PAY EXPENSES

Persons Who Called Meeting To Name Delegates Suspended—Feehan Pays No Attention to Expulsion

Repudiating the action of a number of anti-Feehanities of this immediate vicinity in sending delegates to the "rump" convention held last week in Pittsburg, which deposed President Francis Feehan and other district officers of the United Mine Workers, Charleroi Local No. 593 last night by resolution refused to recognize the Pittsburg meeting or pay the expense of the delegates, and through a vote suspended from the organization those who had sent them. The meeting which was held in P. H. C. hall was largely attended, the place being packed to the doors. EvenNational organizers were present.

Previous to the convention at Pittsburg a meeting of a few members antagonistic to the present administration held a meeting and elected two men as delegates. Such action it is stated was pursued by other locals with the result that President Feehan and other officers were expelled. By majority vote last night at the meeting here all this was declared to be illegal, and the local decided by resolution that it would not sanction the Pittsburg meeting or recognize any business that was transacted there.

President Francis Feehan is paying no attention whatever to the action at the "rump" convention deposing him and other officers but is going ahead preparing for the district convention to be held March 27. This meeting was postponed from February. He is being supported generally by miners over the district, and last week Monongahela local No. 235 took action similer to that taken last night by the Charleroi local and expelled members who called the meeting to appoint delegates to the "rump" convention.

Local Option Bill Defeated

Legislature Votes Against Placing it on the Calander

By a vote of 76 to 121 the House at Harrisburg yesterday refused to adopt the resolution to place the Boyd local option bill on the calendar, notwithstanding the negative recommendations of the law and order committee. This effectually kill the local option bill for the third successive Legislative session, and places on record the forces for and against it.

Some warm speeches were made both for and against the resolution before the question was put to vote. One of the arguments used against local option was by Representative Klumpp of Allegheny, who said that the license system was needed for revenue purposes. Representative Boyd of Westmoreland county, author of the bill, defended the measure and was ably assisted by others. Representatives Holland and Feeney voted in favor of putting the resolution on the calendar, but Representative Bentley voted against it.

WILL ASK ADVICE OF DR. DIXON

North Charleroi Wants Board of Health to Work

JOINT MEETING CALLED

North Charleroi council in its regular session last night instructed Borough Clerk James Haggerty to notify State Heath Commissioner Samuel G. Dixon that council was unable to secure a much needed meeting of the board of health and to ask advice from him. There are a number of matters that need attention and complaints have been filed. Secretary Kelly has been attending to them himself, but other members of the board are alleged to not help him out. Arrangements were made to meet jointly with Charleroi council on next Tuesday evening, March 14, to discuss sewage disposal matters.

In the absence of the president Councilman Samuel Gaskill was appointed to the chair. Other members present were: Sloan, Rockwell and Nebulung.

The treasurer's report showing a balance of $397.22 was accepted. Bills to the amount of $343.45 were ordered paid.

A committee composed of Councilmen Rockwell, Sloan and Neubling was appointed to purchase a hose cart.

The borough solicitor was instructed to draw up an ordinance to regulate the opening of any improved street in the borough for repairing of pipe lines.

The fire department presented the name of Jasper Rockwell as their selection for chief, and council was unanimous in approval.

Borough books will be in shape to be audited in a few days and Auditors Bane, Metz and Williams were notified to make the audit.

The borough solicitor was instruced to proceed in the collection of all liens in favor of the borough. The street committee will secure plans and submit them to council at the next meeting, relative to such sidewalks along Lincoln avenue as should be laid.

GREENE COUNTY TO GET NEW RAILROAD?

Pennsylvania Has Surveyors Laying Out New Route Leading From the River to Waynesburg

WEST PENN MAY BUILD LINE THROUGH TO VALLEY

From present propects there are likely to be some interesting railroad movements in Greene county this year, says the Waynesburg Republican. In addition to the building of a branch of the Pennsylvania lines from Millsboro at Hackney's Station, via Clarksville, Zollarsville and Marianna, which is now assured, the Pennsylvania Railroad company has had a corps of engineers at work the past week, making surveys up South Ten Mile creek from Clarksville toward Jefferson and Waynesburg. Information has leaked out that in additon to making the survey they are taking levels and locating the board. The recent large purchases of surface by coal companies, near Jefferson, indicated that there will be coal operations there in the near future. The surveying corps for the railroad has reached a point near to Jefferson and it is understood it is their intention to continue on to Waynesburg.

The Pennsylvania company has also within the past few weeks made a survey for an extension of their newly projected line from Hackney's station up Ten Mile creek to Conger's and thence on to Prosperity. This is likely to form a part of a new road from Hackney's to Wheeling.

Reliable information has been received that the West Penn Electric Railways company expects to build a road to Waynesburg soon. This company owns 150 miles of electric road in Fayette, Westmoreland and Allegheny counties and will eventually either get control of lines in this part of the Monongahela valley, or build new lines here.

TELEPHONE ORDINANCE TO UNDERGO REVISION

Council Takes Up Bell Telephone Matter and Places it in Hands of Ordinance Committee

OFFICERS' SALARIES ARE INCREASED

Granting permission to the C. D. and P. Telegraph company to place conduits under ground, an ordinance presented by the company passed first reading at the regular meeting of council last night, and was referred to the ordinance committee for revision. The ordinance will be taken up at some future meeting for final consideration, after whatever changes deemed necessary by the ordinance committee have been made.

President J. K. Hein was in the chair and councilmen present were C. O. Frye, W. R. Gaut, Oscar C. Linn and W. H. Calvert. Councilmen Charles Schmeiler and A. O. Davis were absent.

Reports were heard and a number of bills ordered paid. Burgess George W. Risbeck reported a total of 59 arrests during the month, fines aggregating $96.75, $80.75 of which was paid, the balance being served in time. Tax-Collector J. W. Mathias reported for 1909 taxes he had placed in the treasurer's hand the sum of $160.71 and for 1910 taxes, $1,171.30. S. L. Parsons reported tax collections for 1906, 1907 and 1908 aggregating $51.23. Treasurer E. W. Hastings' report for the month ending February 15 is summarized as follows:

Balance from last report	$1,241.10
Receipts	1,567.54
Total	$2,808.64
Disbursements	2,633.07
Balance in treasury	$175.57

Upon recommendation of the police committee the salaries of all the police officers were increased $5.00. The street commissioner's salary was increased a like amount.

Action was taken to the effect that Tax Collector J. W. Mathias be given a month in which to secure money for taxes from those refused exoneration.

Adjournment was taken to meet next Tuesday night jointly with the North Charleroi council for the discussion of the sewage disposal matter.

The accident in which Lizzie Pfile was injured, occurred at the North Charleroi end of the Charleroi Monessen bridge on February 9, 1909. The plaintiffs aver the car was started with a jerk before Lizzie Pfile was free of the step. As a result, it is averred, she was thrown to the street and badly injured. INVESTIGATION IS CONTINUED

Facts Brought Out in Connection With Recent Republican Campaign

Auditor H. B. Hughes, who is investigating the expenditures of the Republican county committee at the last election, held another session yesterday at Washington. About all that was disclosed was that F. J. Scouvart, precinct chairman of Avella, had been given $20 for getting the vote out in his precinct. He testified that he paid two watchers $5 each and kept $10 for his own services. The session adjourned for another hearing Saturday.

Attempt to Force Party To Accept His Dictation Meets With Entire Failure

AFTER HIS GUARANTEE

Want Him to Stick With Them Through Thick and Thin—Manipulation of Other Tickets Alleged

According to the Washington Record, former Congressman E. F. Acheson is laying plans to try to capture the county offices at the coming election. Concerning his efforts the Record says:

"E. F. Acheson is trying to force the Keystone party to accept his dictation of all nominations for county offices. The Keystone leaders refused to subscribe to his program and there is some ground for a belief that the ex-boss now has no more influence outside of the Republican party than he has in it.

"Many of the Keystone leaders wish to be free to indorse Republican candidates for office if an indorsement appears to be the proper thing. The ex-boss has let it be understood that he will not support any candidate at all unless he is on the Keystone ticket, and that he cannot go on the ticket without the consent of the Honorable E. F. He is also attempting to manipulate the nominations of all tickets and the discovery of his game by Keystone men and Republicans at about the same time has stirred up a condition which promises to force him to play a lone hand.

"For the purpose of intimidating candidates it has been rumored that the newspapers controlled by the ex-boss have prepared and are ready to publish a great mass of material attacking their records. This system of attack is not new and it has ceased to be effective.

"Unless he is willing to guarantee the Keystone party men he will stick with them through primaries and the regular election as a foe of the Republican party he has been told not to expect to have a say in nominating the least of the party's candidates. That he will now attempt to manipulate the Democratic primaries is regarded as certain. A number of Democratic candidates, however, have aroused a good deal of Democratic enthusiasm and they are prepared to re-organize their party on a basis which will put Democrats only into party offices."

Everybody Boost

The Charleroi merchants are preparing for a "Booster Week." Their idea is to promote trade, to bring to the town again those patrons who may have wandered away, and to also attract new ones. It is simply a trade promoting idea, in which united effort is substituted for the effort of the individual, and in which the energy of the one is multiplied by the energy of all.

It is the general belief in business circles that much trade that formerly came to Charleroi has been lost to the town. For this various causes are assigned, among which is the competition of nearby towns and of Pittsburg as well as the big mail order houses of the large cities. These latter houses, as well as the Pittsburg firms, have been more persistent advertisers than the local merchants, and it is but natural that their efforts should bring results. The aggregate of these losses in trade amount to a big item in the course of a year, and it is time that the local people began to take notice. It is to counteract this outside influence that the Booster Week is being promoted, and it will be a success if everybody will only boost.

Not Yet

For the third time in succession a local option bill has been killed in the State Legislature. While the supporters of the bill this session were not so sanguine as formerly, and the ultimate result was foreshadowed, the showing made clearly indicates that the issue will not down, and that the question in some form will sooner or later be given a trial at least. The time is not yet ripe for the inauguration of popular regulation of the liquor traffic.

While the principle of local option is quite generally approved by the people, there are many reasons for the lack of a united demand for its adoption. Chief of these perhaps is the operation of the Brooks law which, despite the opposition of the temperance forces, is a most efficient measure in regulating and restricting the liquor traffic. When the provisions of the Brooks law are rigidly enforced they are really more prohibitive than a popular expression on the subject. The court will not, as a rule, tolerate what will be overlooked and condoned by the public. Compared with other States the Brooks law of Pennsylvania makes the traffic less odious than the less restrictive laws of other States, and for that reason public sentiment has never been aroused to the same degree here as elsewhere.

Another reason, perhaps, why the drink habit so generally prevails in the industrial sections of the State is the unpleasant and unattractive homes and communities in which large numbers of the workers are obliged to live. This is a most potent factor in promoting the drinking habit, and until these conditions are removed there is not much hope for improvement in popular sentiment against the abuses of the liquor traffic. Economic conditions among the workers are worse in Pennsylvania than in any other State, and that alone is a big obstacle to overcome in favor of local option. The sentiment for this plan of regulation is no doubt growing, but the public is not yet responsive to the demands for its adoption.

ELECTRIC SPARKS

The trouble with a Chinese newspaper is that you can't tell when you have the thing upside down.

Strong drink and banana peelings have caused the down-fall of many a good man.

Roosevelt used to have a corner on surprises, but his glory in that line has now passed into the hands of President Taft.

John D. Rockefeller's pastor has thrown up the job because they won't build a larger church. It's up to John.

Whenever you see a man who doesn't wear his feelings ready to be penetrated on the outside of his overcoat you can either put it down that he is an idiot or a really broad thinking man. Most likely the former.

When legal lights get to praising the moon they are entirely out of order. It takes astronomers to do that, and no successful lawyer has any business being a real nice honest gent like most of that class.

Some Mark Twains Maxims

The very ink with which all history is written is merely fluid prejudice.

There isn't a parallel of latitude but thinks it would have have been the equator if it had had its rights.

All say, "How hard it is that we have to die." A strange complaint to come from the mouths of people who have had to live.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

Men have so few beauty doctors that they should be especially grateful for the instructions given by Homer Croy on the manipulation of their hair. Leaving out of account those males who have got to the stage of using a huckaback towel for parting their scanty locks, Mr. Croy considers the need of others with painstaking thoughtfulness:

"Men with low, squatting foreheads should not pull their hair down over their brows, and men whose foreheads are beginning to work back should invite their locks down. If your hair has quietly slipped down toward your ears on each side, leave it there. If you bring it up in strings and wisps it will merely look like climbing vines, and will never really have the free-and-easy, homelike appearance that ought to be the part of all natural hair.

"Do not part your hair any earlier than you can help. Hair is in a hurry these days, anyway. Usually it doesn't stay more than long enough too make sure that the baby is going to be a boy before it hastens off. It will part of itself soon enough, the best you can do.

"Before combing your hair you should get acquainted with the architecture of your face. If your face is of the harvest moon variety, do not inlay your hair. Puff it up as much as possible. It's better to look like a feather duster on a Monday morning than a scratched billiard ball on a Saturday night.

"But if your face is a long, galloping ensemble, do not encourage your hair to fluff. If your head inclines to run up to a cone, do not spread your hair around in imitation of a palm street hatch; rather fluff it up and winrow it for fear some unbred person will begin to talk about spring radish tops."

"There's more in typewriting than a person would think," declared a well known business man recently. "There's a big lesson in the operating of one of these labor saving machines. For instance take the career of Rose L. Fritz, who has held for sometime the speed record of the world.

"Miss Fritz can write out words faster than most campaign spellbinders and speak them, which is going some.

"Every stenographer, at some time or another, has tried to see how fast the typewriter carriage would go. In these cases the results would show up something like this:

"NOW is the time for all 1 good men to come to the axe of the party) or words to that effect.

"In Philadelphia not long ago Miss Fritz wrote 6,135 words in an hour from new copy.

"She wrote from unfamiliar printed matter 123 words in one minute.

"Then she took in shorthand 187 words in a minute and followed this by transcribing her notes 112 words in a minute.

"Here's the lesson for all girls in what Miss Fritz has done:

"Six years ago at 16, she began to study typewriting. In three weeks she was doing perfect work at the rate of 120 words a minute. Hard work and nothing else did it."

Besides breathing Hyomei through the inhaler a few times a day try this for quick relief and cure, especially for stubborn cases.

It's wonderful how quickly this method clears the stuffed up head and relives the distress caused by catarrh. Steel Pen Helps Forgers.

The crime of forgery has been facilitated and increased by the modern introduction of metallic pens, gold and steel, says a writer in the Indianapolis News. The old fashioned quill pen was smooth and pleasant to write with, though it sometimes balked and sputtered, but it did not lend itself to skillful imitations as easily as the metallic pen does. The crime of forgery doubtless has been promoted by the almost universal education of modern times. In an age when everybody writes and when many are skillful penmen forgeries are much more frequent than they were centuries ago, when the person who could handle a pen was an exception. Many modern criminals make a living by committing forgeries, victimizing hotels, banks, capitalists and business men generally.

Domestic Economy.

"Hey, mon," exclaimed the braw, bonnie north countryman, "thrift is a wunnerful thing!"

"Yes," replied his English traveling companion. "You're right there. Now, I gave my wife a ten pound note to manage on last time I was away, and—would you believe it?—instead of exceeding it she saved nearly a sovereign out of it to buy herself a hat!"

"That's nowt," replied the Scotsman. "My wife gives the kids ha'pennies apiece to go to bed supperless; when they're asleep she takes the ha'pennies off on 'em ageean, and then she makes 'em do wi'out ony breakfasts for losin' 'em! Hey, mon, that's thrift!"—London Scraps.

TOWER HILL

A Noted London Spot, the Scene of Many Famous Occurrences.

Tower Hill is perhaps both the most important eminence and the most notable spot in all London. Few of us think what great persons have quietly lived there and what others, equally great, have wept and died upon it.

To it, or rather to Great Tower street, came Rochester to pursue his trade as an Italian fortune teller, while the bedizened Buckingham often walked thither to consult a conjurer, a shrewd, farseeing rogue, who, when Felton bought at the cutler's shop on the summit of the hill for a shilling the knife with which he killed the duke's father, may have known for what purpose it was required.

William Penn was born on this hill in a house close to London wall. Forty-four years later—that is, in A. D. 1685—a poet lay dead, choked by a crust which starvation had urged him to devour too greedily, in an upper room of the Bull tavern. This was the ill fated Otway. At the time when the son of the muses lay dead Betterton, the celebrated founder of the stage after the restoration, was wringing tears from the eyes of the public, not for the famished dead, but at his own fictitious sorrows in "Venice Preserved."

It was in Great Tower street that Peter the Great used to pass his evenings drinking hot pepper and brandy with his boon companion, Lord Carmarthen.—London Standard.

His Sarcastic Friend.

He was very proud of his new automobile—talked automobile, dreamed automobile, read automobile. Finally to his friends he became a nuisance, and each to himself swore softly that he would bide his time and at the proper moment give him a little verbal thrust.

Finally one long suffering individual was asked to go for a ride. Excuses were of no avail. He was bundled into the machine and taken for a spin through the parks and over the boulevards. In due course of time, without any serious mishap, they pulled up at the Automobile club. The auto crank and his guest were soon surrounded by several of their friends.

"How did you enjoy your ride?" was asked of the auto crank's friend.

"Until today I never thought an automobile could go so fast," was his reply. (Here the auto crank was all attention. That was some praise for his car. Right out in public too. That would silence some of the scoffers who

History In Toys.

The history of the world is crystallized in the children's toys. Each great war leaves soldiers in the nursery cupboard dressed correctly to a strap and button. This has always been so. As each successive age in the world's history has gone by the weapons of that age have passed to the hands of the boys as toys. There are in our great museums miniature crossbows, spears and shields. Toy armor as finely inlaid and engraved as any real accouterments is occasionally to be seen, and old prints show the boys playing with such figures. Even the children of the French revolution had their toy guillotines.—Collier's.

Wanted It to Show.

A rich old farmer once had his portrait painted. When the portrait was finished the old farmer looked at it, shook his head and said to the artist: "Very good. Very good, indeed. But there is one fault that you must remedy. Please make the right side of the chest bulge out. That is where I carry my wallet."

Playing at Death.

The mother of Ivan Turgener, the Russian novelist, was a trying person to live with, irritable, capricious and unreasonable. On Ivan's birthday in 1845, we are told in "Two Russian Reformers" after a day of festivities, Mme. Turgener pretended to be dying. "She sent for her confessor and, placing before her the portrait of her son Ivan, exclaimed 'Adieu, Ivan! Adieu, Nicolas! Adieu my children" Then she ordered her forty servants and all the men employed about the house to say goodby to her. When they had filed out of the room Mme Turgenev declared that she felt better and asked for tea. The next day the following 'order' appeared

"'I give orders that tomorrow morning the disobedient servants, Nicolas Jacovlef, Ivan Petrof and Egor Kondratanef, shall sweep the court in front of my windows'

"Those names were those of servants who had not appeared at her bedside, possibly because they were a little drunk that evening. 'Good for nothings' Drunkards' exclaimed Mme Turgenev. 'They rejoice at the death of their mistress!'"

The Bank Beat the Prince.

The Gentlewoman of London recalls the following story of the prince regent and Coutts bank: "When George IV was a regent he had a grudge against Coutts and determined to play a trick on the authorities. In those days even the great banks kept very small reserves of cash, and the playful prince thought out a plan to close Coutts'. So he sent his equerry round from Carlton House with a check for £100,000, fondly hoping that the bank would not be able to pay over the counter. The prince's trick, however, failed of success, as the wary old partner of the Strand bank proved equal to the occasion He said at once to the equerry, 'How will his royal highness take the amount, in gold or notes?' The equerry hesitated and then said he had better go back to Carlton House to inquire So he departed, and Coutts' had time to send to the Bank of England and get the cash required, but it was not needed, as the prince regent, seeing that Coutts' had got the best of him, did not return the check in question"

Eggs That Can't Be Found.

The eggs of some common birds of the present day have never been found. There is the robin snipe, its eggs have never been seen An English zoologist kept a man going up and down the coast of Labrador for weeks purposely to get a robin snipe's egg, but it was in vain. The bird is known by thousands of people but it breeds so far north and so remote from any civilization that no scientific observer can ever get to its nest ere the young are hatched and have taken to wing The frigate bird that is so commonly seen at sea on the Pacific and off the West Indies is such a solitary bird and is so seldom seen in its nest during the hours of daylight that its egg is rare. It seems strange, but the eggs of so well known a bird as the sandpiper have never been found and are almost priceless.—London Globe.

Reversed the Proposition

Robert Wickliffe Woolley the writer found it necessary not long ago to take a trip west. On the dining car of the train he saw that he had in his pocket 10 cents in change, his smallest bank note being one for $50. He handed this to the porter, who went to the end of the car for a conference with the conductor.

"I'm very sorry about this," said the conductor, standing in front of Woolley and toying with the big bill, "but we haven't the change for $50. We'll just take your address and send you the change"

Woolley calmly reached over and took possession of the banknote "You've got nothing on me," he said. "I'll take the address of the railroad and send the price of the meal."—Chicago Record-Herald.

The Baths of Caracalla.

The Romans appear to have been well off in the matter of bathing places in the first and second centuries. In the baths of Caracalla 1,600 bathers could be accommodated at one time. The inclosed area was 360 square yards, but it included a course for foot racing The bathing establishment was 240 yards in length by 124 wide. The remains of the walls are eight and ten feet thick and in some places as much as fifty feet high.

A Cumulative Test.

As the thin man and the stout one were talking of diet and food in general the thin man said: "You can get an excellent dinner at Clapham's, the restaurant near my office, for 25 cents Ever try one of his dinners?"

"One of 'em! Yes, I should say I had," said the stout man. "Why, I ate four of 'em one day last week!"

The Best Thing.

"What do you mean by kissing me, Herr Frisch?"

"My aunt told me to. She told me to come and help myself to the best thing I could find in the kitchen."—Fliegende Blatter.

Just Men.

If any one says that he has seen a just man in want of bread I answer that it was in some place where there was no other just man.—St. Clement.

Can Afford It.

"Has the doctor a large practice?"

"So large that when people have nothing the matter with them he tells them so."—Pittsburg Post.

RIDING THE BUZZARD.

The Ricebird Uses His Bulky Enemy as an Aeroplane.

People generally associate size and brute strength with victory, especially among the lower animals. Many times, however, this is far from being the case, especially in the bird kingdom Among the rice flats of the Carolinas there abound at some seasons of the year tiny ricebirds, birds so small that it takes two dozen for a good meal, though bones and all are eaten.

The great buzzard is found circling over the flats at all seasons He dreads the time for the ricebird to come, for he is then nearly pestered to death. It is a common sight to see one of these little birds fly up to a buzzard and, after dodging this way and that round the awkward bulk, finally alight well forward between the buzzard's wings on the back Here the tiny passenger grabs a few feathers in his beak and holds on for grim life After enjoying a ride for as long as he desires the little fellow hops off and is gone before Mr Buzzard is well aware of it.

The peculiar part of the whole thing is that apparently the only purpose the ricebird has in getting on the back of the buzzard is to take a free ride It puzzles every one who chances to see [illegible] son, yet the fact remains that it is a frequent occurrence, and the little birds seem to enjoy it immensely.—New York Tribune

INDIAN DEATH CUSTOMS.

Graves of the Hopi and the Hogans of the Navajos.

The Hopi Indian believes that the souls of all deceased adults go to the Grand canyon When a man dies a grave is dug. The nearest relative of the deceased carries the body to the grave, places it in a sitting posture facing the Grand canyon, erects a long pole between the legs, locks the dead man's fingers around it and fills the grave To the top of the pole, protruding above the ground, he ties one end of a string and leads the other end in the direction of the Grand canyon At the end of four days it is believed the soul leaves the body, climbs the pole and with the string to guide it goes to its eternal home in the canyon.

The Navajos, on the contrary, are very superstitious about handling dead bodies. They believe that the evil spirit that kills the person hovers around the hogan, as they call their lodge, awaiting other victims, and a hogan in which a death occurs is never occupied again Navajo hogans are always built with the entrance facing the east. When a death occurs in one of them an opening is invariably made in the north side Therefore when one sees a hogan with the north side knocked out he may be certain some one has died in it.—Dillon Wallace in Outing.

Antiquity of the Dog.

It is impossible to say when dogs were first domesticated but some of the earliest traces are found on Egyptian monuments, with figures of dogs, somewhat of the greyhound type which date back to at least 3500 B. C Even in those remote days the dog was highly esteemed Coming down a little later, we read that Ulysses 3,000 years ago was recognized by his dog Argus after his swineherd had failed to do so.

Plutarch speaks of Alcibades, who cut off the tail of his dog, and Myron, the sculptor, immortalized the animal by chiseling his image in marble. The Romans valued their dogs and kept them from the chase and also as pets. Alexander the Great owned a veteran fit to tackle a lion.

A Bibulous Goose.

Geese will live to a great age, and some few years ago I came across a very venerable goose (male or female I cannot now say) in Westmoreland in unexpected circumstances I was walking from Milnthorpe to Arnside and at Gansaside found an acquaintance sitting on a seashore bench feeding a pet goose with biscuits steeped in ale. He told me that this goose had been in his family for over forty years and was partial to beer, stout and even gin.

Rev James Hall, M A., told of a goose in Stirlingshire, Scotland, that had been killed by accident after living at the same place for "above eighty years."—London Field

Skating on a Tennis Court.

When one is building a tennis court provision may easily be made for a rink by excavating from six inches to one foot deeper than the surrounding ground and making this depressed area as much greater than his court as his purse or surroundings will permit. Twenty-five feet in the clear outside the lines of the court will give an area of over 11,000 square feet—an ample space for a number of people to occupy without crowding. The court may be flooded by means of a hose attached to the house faucet, first saturating the ground and then when it has frozen flooding the court.—Suburban Life.

Deafness of Blue Eyed White Cats.

All white cats are not deaf, but most blue eyed white cats are. It has never been discovered why the blue eyed cats should have the tendency to deafness, but it is a fact, while there has never been a case known of a yellow eyed or green eyed white cat being deaf unless by accident.—St. Nicholas.

Duty.

Duty stands for the most part close at hand, unobscured, simple, immediate. If any man has the will to hear her voice, to him is she willing to enter and be his ready guest.—Francis Peabody.

ATHLETIC DEVOTIONS.

Gymnastic Exercises That Impressed the Kurdish Villagers.

Everything is liable to be misunderstood, even gymnastic exercises This truth was brought home to George H. Hepworth, and he tells his experience in "Through Armenia on Horseback." The author was stopping in a Kurdish village, and the inn possessed but one general living room.

In the morning I began my regular gymnastics, stooping until my fingers touched the floor, throwing my arms about like the spokes of a wheel, striking out from the shoulder and going through all the exercises, none of which I ever omitted. I would gladly have taken a sponge bath, but it would have been impossible to get enough water. A pint is enough to suffice a Turk.

Well, I got under way with my exercises when I saw that my audience was excited; conversation dropped into a whisper, then ceased, word passed from one to another, and one by one the occupants of the room quietly left. I feared that they were offended and wanted to call them back and apologize. Just then my dragoman entered, laughing

"What has happened?" I asked.

He laughed the harder as he replied: "The Kurds think you are practicing devotional religious exercises, and they retired under the impression that you would regard their presence as an intrusion."

Invisible Indians.

All Indians seem to have learned a wonderful way of walking unseen, making themselves invisible like certain spiders, which, in case of alarm, caused, for example by a bird alighting on the bush their webs are spread upon, immediately bounce themselves up and down on their elastic threads so rapidly that only a blur is visible. The wild Indian power of escaping observation, even where there is little or no cover to hide in, was probably slowly acquired in hard hunting and fighting lessons while trying to approach game, take enemies by surprise or get safely away when compelled to retreat. And this experience transmitted through many generations seems at length to have become what is vaguely called instinct.—John Muir in Atlantic.

How To Stop —A— Stubborn Cough

We don't mean just stop the irritation in your throat—but cure the underlying cause.

Cough syrups cannot do this. It takes a constitutional tonic body builder to do the work properly—and cure you to stay cured. Vinol is the remedy you need.

Mrs. Minnie Osgood, of Glens Falls, N. Y., writes:—"After trying several remedies for a bad cough and cold without benefit, I was asked to try Vinol. It worked like magic. It cured my cold and cough and I gained in health and strength. I consider Vinol the most wonderful tonic and invigorator I ever saw."

If we cannot stop that cough with VINOL—our delicious cod liver and iron tonic—which is made without oil—we will not charge you a cent for the medicine you buy. This seems like a pretty fair proposition—and ought to be accepted. Don't you think so? With this understanding we ask you to try a bottle of VINOL.

Splendid for the Blood

"Being all run down last spring I was advised to take Pinkham's Blood Purifier. I tried one bottle, and got such quick relief that by the time I had taken three bottles I felt like a new person. After taking the medicine I gained twenty pounds in three months" —Aaron Winslow, 60 Washington Street, Lynn, Mass.

At this season of the year almost every one needs a reliable blood purifier or spring medicine. This is indicated by that tired, "dragged-out" feeling—humors and eruptions which appear on the face and body,—and unless the blood is purified and enriched more serious consequences are liable to follow.

Pinkham's Blood Purifier

The best spring and blood medicine, is prepared by the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company, of Lynn, Mass. You know this Company. You know that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the standard medicine for women; your common-sense tells that the company which owns so successful and valuable a medicine as that could never afford to risk its reputation by putting on the market any other medicine not of the same high degree of excellence. When you buy medicine prepared by this company you get the best, and Pinkham's Blood Purifier is The Best

DO YOU know of anyone who is old enough to read, who has not seen that sign at a railroad crossing?

Maybe you think, Mr. Merchant, "Most everybody knows my store, I don't have to advertise."

Your store and your goods need more advertising than the railroads need do to warn people to "Look Out for the Cars."

Brownsville Hotell License is Revoked

Judge Robert E. Umble yesterday at Uniontown ordered the bar of the Pennsylvania Hotel at South Brownsville closed indefinitely. The order suspending the license resulted from testimony at a hearing before Judge Umbel, where Washington county residents complained of the treatment they they received at the hotel one Sunday last summer. T. J. Underwood and J. R. Myers, both of California, and Joseph Underwood and Alfred Latchen, both of Roscoe, stated that when they complained to the proprietor declared he thought the court was not running the hotel.

An Elusive Water Lily.

The water lily of the Amazon has very elusive habits. The buds open twice, the first time just a chink at the tip in the early sunrise hours, a sort of premonitory symptom. On the following evening it spreads its four sepals with such alacrity that you can see them move. But the big white bud among them remains unchanged until [illegible] when it hurriedly spreads its blossom wide open, remaining in this condition only half an hour. Within the hour it has nearly closed, and by another hour and a half the entire flower has been drawn under water by the coiling of the stalk

Diamonds.

Diamonds were first brought to Europe from the east, where the mine of Sumbulpoor was the first known. Golconda, now in ruins, was once a celebrated diamond mart. The mines of Brazil were discovered in 1728 and for a long time furnished most of the diamonds of commerce. In 1867 diamonds were discovered in Cape Colony, and in 1870 the wonderful finds in the Transvaal were made which resulted in the immense fortunes of the late Cecil Rhodes and others. Most of the diamonds of the world are now furnished by the South African fields.—New York American.
